Chief's Message

On behalf of the Stratford Police Service, I am proud to present this report which details the recent achievements and the challenges faced not only our police service but the community at large.

The experience of a global pandemic informed the police service on enhancements needed to our Emergency Response Plans, how social isolation affected our population and the trends that we observed as a result.

Mental health, addiction, homelessness, family conflict and self-harm dominate our social issues calls for service and through the implementation of the Community Safety and Well-Being Plan the police service is collaborating with a larger cross section of community partners than ever before the result being better efficiencies within the system and more effective outcomes for the public. The Mobile Crisis Rapid Response Team (MCRRT) has been embedded into the police service delivery model to ensure street level support for people in crisis.

The police service continues to leverage technology to support community safety, increase public accountability and modernize service delivery. Every frontline police officer is now equipped with Body Worn Camera technology, Digital Evidence Management Software and Electronic Court Brief submission through SCOPE allows for better evidence handling and sharing with the Crown Attorney's Office for prosecution, most of the marked police cruisers will soon be equipped with Automatic Licence Plate Reader (ALPR) technology and the service is preparing for Next Generation 911 dispatch capabilities by upgrading telecommunications including phone systems, dispatch consoles and police radio systems.

The police service has also modernized it's training with a focus on de-escalation in live scenarios covering a wide range of call response including intimate partner violence, hate based crimes and individuals on the autism spectrum. Each of these call types were identified by the community as requiring a greater focus on a victim centered approach with more sensitivity and compassion to the complexity of the situation.

The police service has implemented initiatives to address Equity, Diversity and Inclusion to better position the police service to not only better represent but also better understand the needs of our equity deserving communities. A Community Equity Action Team consisting of representatives from primarily our BIPOC communities advises the Police Service Board on issues relating to police policies, procedures, recruitment and promotion and the recent adoption of the 30% female by 2030 strategy are meant to build trust and respect between the police and the community.

The focus for the coming years will be on further modernization of our service delivery model by leveraging technology to support our work, diversifying our workforce to reflect our changing population and build trust, supporting the mental health needs of the community, ensuring that the deployment of officers is evidence based and takes into consideration the predictive analysis of our workload, improving the accessibility and functionality of our police facilities to support the community and our members, implementing staffing strategies to support police visibility and safety and promoting more collaboration and strategic priorities alignment with other community stakeholders through the Community Safety and Well-Being Plan.

Complaints Against Police

Accountability and transparency go a long way to building trust between the public and the police. There are two independent civilian investigative agencies in Ontario whose mandates are to investigate the conduct of police officers.

The Office of the Independent Review Director (OIPRD) investigates all complaints where a member of public alleges that an officer has committed misconduct under the Police Services Act.

"Police officers are expected to act with honesty and integrity and not abuse the extraordinary powers and authority they are granted. Police officers are also expected to treat people with respect and to act in a manner that does not discredit or undermine public confidence in the police service." www.oiprd.ca

The Stratford Police Service implemented Body Worn Cameras to preserve evidence of police interactions with the public and enhance police accountability.

While the number of public complaints continues to rise the vast majority of those complaints are screened out by the OIPRD prior to be referred for investigation and of the 6 complaints in 2022 that were referred for investigation 5 resulted in findings of unsubstantiated while 1 complaint went to early resolution. In 2022 there were also 2 Service Complaints investigated with action taken in 1 of those investigations.

The Special Investigations Unit (SIU) is a civilian law enforcement agency which investigates incidents involving police officers where there has been death, serious injury or allegations of sexual assault where there may be criminal conduct on the part of the officer(s).

There was 1 SIU investigation in 2022 that was deemed after investigation to be caused by a medical issue so there was no finding of any police misconduct.
